NOTICE To Property Owners and Tenants

All persons are requested to clean their premises of all old papers, excelsior, straw, old wood and rubbish and see that it is carted away to the city dump or destroyed before 8 p. m. July 3rd, 1910.

As the sale of fire crackers and explosives is permitted this year there is bound to be fire from that source. A little care on the part of all property owners and householders by cleaning up their premises may prevent a large fire, and will greatly assist the fire department.

The following suggestions, if carried out, may prevent a conflagration:

Take in under cover all barrels, boxes, etc., or any inflammable material that is liable to add to the danger.

Close all cellars, windows and airways where a match or cracker could be carelessly dropped.

See that all old papers, hay, excelsior, etc., is removed from under the gratings in your sidewalks.

Learn your nearest fire alarm box and ask someone to teach you how to send in an alarm if you have not been instructed, and use it if necessary.

If you have a telephone in your home or place of business it may be connected to telephone to some fire station, being careful to give the correct locality and number of house.

Place the numbers of the fire department telephones on your instrument so as to be ready. These should always be there ready for any emergency.

Connect your garden hose and have it ready. Also bring your ladder from the barn and have it ready to get to the roof of your house where most of the trouble will be, as Norwich is a city of shingled roofs.

HOWARD L. STANTON,

Chief of Fire Department and Fire Marshal.

Beautiful Williamstown.

Upon some of the distinguished visitors whom Williamstown has honored at the recent commencement the beauty of the place apparently made a deep impression. Superlatives are dangerous, but it is safe to say that there is no fairer town in the state than that in which the college nestles, no other to which that word so well applies because encircled in the arms of the everlastingly hills and mountains which in that section are the finest in the state. More than once the late Rev. Dr. A. P. Peabody of Harvard poured out in eloquent appreciation the inspiring effect of that scenery upon his mind and spirit, and its value as a factor in shaping the ideals of young men.

Though a graduate of Brown, Gov. Hughes acknowledged his obligations to Williamstown for that college song, "The Mountains," written by Rev. Dr. Washington Gladden, when a student, and that he did not believe could have been written in any other college. He had sung it himself in the Alps, and it was always suggested when he found himself communing with Nature in lofty places. Judge Francis C. Lowell spoke of the beauties of many other towns of the state, but said that the main street of Williamstown was the type and culmination of them all. Probably Col. Ephraim Williams, when he established the free school that grew into the college, in this respect, builded better than he knew. Others who came after him saw the possibilities and took steps toward their attainment, prominent among them being Prof. Albert Hopkins, brother of President Mark, but even the modest heritage that he left has undergone a splendid transformation in recent years and the work is still going on. In all our New England colleges beauty is an asset that is constantly and rapidly appreciating.—Boston Transcript.

Fraternal "Freezing Out."

The New Bedford Standard speaks of the "freezing out" process in fraternal insurance organizations. There has been altogether too much of it, and it spells ruin for some of them. The Arcanum was a shining example of the "freezing out" process five years ago, and the Workmen another. There have been others. The reason is that after members have been in these organizations for 30 or 40 years and got along where they are too old to secure insurance in a regular insurance company, the younger members combine and load them down with assessments intending to drive them out and take advantage of all the money these older members have paid in for years. If an organization finds that its assessments are too low, and most of them start that way, then rates should be raised. But when the increase is made it should be just to the older members as well as the younger ones. But the younger members do not allow this; they place the entire burden on the older ones. No consideration is given to all the years the older ones have been paying in their money. They do not assess these older members what they ought to have paid at the age they were when they joined, but they assess them at the rate they would pay if they were joining to-day, which, of course is unfair. No one of them would join an organization and pay the rate, but they are there and too old to get insured anywhere else. All their savings may be in the assessments they have paid this organization, and they are forced to remain and submit to the injustice, hard as it is. That is why the younger element pushes up their assessments, knowing full well that it is pay or get out.—Salem News.

MR. PINCHOT'S FUNCTION.

The extent to which Gifford Pinchot may have been able to win ex-President Roosevelt to his views of the Taft administration and of Secretary Ballinger's handling of the affairs of the department of the interior is, of course, a constant source of speculation in Washington, and in this connection on intimate of Mr. Roosevelt told the writer a strikingly significant anecdote. "Mr. President, the French ambassador telephoned to know if you can play tennis with him this afternoon," said

Secretary Loeb as he entered the office of the chief executive one day during the last administration. "No," replied Mr. Roosevelt; "no, tell him I am very sorry, but I have another engagement." Then, turning to the friends with whom he had been conversing, he said: "I have got to go for a long walk with Gifford Pinchot this afternoon. I had a conference with Lou Payn this morning, and whenever I have a conference with Payn I have to go for a long walk with Gifford afterward to convince him that my morals have not been corrupted and that I am not going to betray the dear people."—New York Tribune.
